

Maintaining pluralism in authoritarian systems: Lessons from Turkey and beyond

Turkey's new authoritarianism has created a highly reduced operating environment for the Turkish opposition to contest Erdoğan's power. Yet despite these political transformations, there is an ongoing resistance which has not only denied political hegemony to Erdoğan and his party but is critical to maintaining political pluralism. This webinar will look at how the political opposition in Turkey has survived under an authoritarian system and how it has found new ways of resisting and preventing the consolidation of authoritarian rule. Discussion will draw upon other experiences to help sketch out lessons from other authoritarian contexts.

Presenters

Dr Tezcan Gümüş

Lecturer in Islamic Studies, Asia Institute, Faculty of Arts, The University of Melbourne

Iain MacGillivray

PhD Candidate, School of Social & Political Sciences, Faculty of Arts, The University of Melbourne

Dr Dara Conduit

Alfred Deakin Postdoctoral Research Fellow, Faculty of Arts and Education, Alfred Deakin Institute, Deakin University

Dr William Gurlay

School of Social Sciences, Monash University and Research Associate, Deakin University

With an introduction by Associate Professor Matthew Nelson, Asia Institute; chaired by Melissa Conley Tyler, Research Fellow, Asia Institute.

Further reading: 'New forms of oppositional politics in Erdoğan's Turkey', by Dr Tezcan Gümüş & Iain MacGillivray

Banner image (cropped): Ekrem İmamoğlu, June 2019. Credit: WikiCommons/Cee Cee.